Overview: This program will provide an introduction to English history and culture from the arrival of Hengest and Horsa to the Battle of Bosworth Field. It will include consideration of the Anglo-Saxon, Anglo-Norman and Middle English periods. Readings (all in modern English) will be complemented by a series of interdisciplinary lectures and site visits. Classes will initially be conducted Monday-Thursday at Durham University; there will be two two-hour meetings per day. The morning sessions will be interdisciplinary lectures. Most of the afternoon sessions will be less formal discussions of the assigned readings; some sessions will be dedicated to preparation for site visits and movies.

Accommodations & Excursions: Students will reside at Grey College, University of Durham, for the first two and a half weeks, at York for two nights, and at Pickwick Hall, London, for the remaining two weeks. Site visits will include Durham Cathedral, Lindisfarne, York, Rochester, Canterbury, Fountains Abbey, the site of the Battle of Hastings, Dover Castle, the British Library and the British Museum, the Tower of London, Windsor Castle, Parliament and more. The majority of meals at Durham are included in the estimated cost. There will also be ample opportunity for independent travel on long weekends.

"Very fun, excellent way to acquire class credits while on an adventure."

"I had very little knowledge about the subject matter going into the class and felt like I learned a lot while having a lot of fun."

"I would highly recommend this program to other students, because you get to do a lot of hands on learning while also making friends and memories that will last a lifetime."
